Heart Failure Clinic (Department 7264) The Heart Failure Clinic (HFC) was established in March 2006 by the Florida Hospital Cardiovascular Institute to provide underserved patients with access to specialty care for chronic heart failure management. Serving metropolitan Orlando's 1.8 million residents, the HFC provides free office visits, medications, diagnostic testing and social services until patients are connected with community resources. The HFC has provided 2,097 patient visits since opening. According to Workforce Central Florida, 7.7 percent of the area's population is unemployed. That translates into many people without insurance, and that number is growing. The trend is being felt at the Heart Failure Clinic where in just the last year, the number of patients they serve has grown by more than 250 percent. Clinic nurse practitioners say it is vital to have regular medical checkups for those who have cardiovascular disease. "We treat patients at the Heart Failure Clinic so they don't go back into the hospital and can actually improve their health and quality of life," said Cindi Hayes, Cardiology Nurse Practitioner. The Heart Failure Clinic serves patients with cardiovascular disease who have no insurance or are a non-HMO Medicaid recipient. The clinic is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.	$ 3,700.00	Florida Hospital	101290
