Secretary Dudek Supports National Architecture Week

TALLAHASSEE—“The Agency for Health Care Administration proudly celebrates National Architecture Week in recognition of the integral work that architects do to safeguard health care both in Florida and throughout the nation. At this time, we acknowledge architects for their tireless efforts to design, construct and regularly inspect health care facilities in an effort to ensure that they meet or exceed regulatory codes. We salute them for their commitment to providing clean, safe locations for the diagnosis and treatment of America’s unwell. The Agency supports the American Institute of Architects’ effort to showcase the positive role that architects play in our communities and their contributions to creating and maintaining a safe, effective health care system.”
